Hi, Id just like to say that after following this so called selection process over the years, I sometimes think the people at the DOE and the NRC cant suprise me anymore. Once again Im wrong.I wont bother with all the ballyhoo that is normally spread by the Yucca supporters. But I would like to tell you what I think of the latest sorry excuse for the dump.

I heard that with our new terrorist threat , the spent fuel is not safe where is . That it cannot be adequately protected in the storage facilities of the power plants where the waste is produced. Well if the waste isnt safe at the plant then the plant is not safe ,so, I guess we better shut down the plant.

Nevermind all the problems of packing this stuff up and moving across the country for years at taxpayer expense. Nevermind the exposure to the terrorist threat while it is being packed up for transport. Gee, if it cannot be protected in the power plant, how will you protect it through out the long process of making it "safe" for travel.

I could go on and on, but I think Ive made my point. The one and only reason for the Yucca Mtn. dump, is to take this waste problem off the hands of the people that made it, and dump it on the U.S. taxpayer. The nuclear plant supporters will say anything to make that happen. Sadly, I think its just about greed.
